

Biography

Isabelle SEVERIN

Isabelle Severin is a food toxicology associate professor in a food engineer school in Dijon, France. She defended her PhD in 2002 and works on development and use of in vitro models to study the potential toxicity of substances present in packaging in terms of cytotoxicity, genotoxicity and endocrine disruption to assess hazard of substance mixtures and in particular the cocktail that migrate from packaging into foods.

Title for the presentation

Integrated chemical safety assessment of food contact articles